Global Caché Expands Distribution into Germany German Distributor audio Network to Sell Global Caché Devices

Las Vegas, NV and Jacksonville, OR – June 6, 2005 – (infoComm05 Booth #3517) Global Caché, the award winning provider of products that enable technology in homes and businesses, announced today it has begun selling products through audio Network Distribution, a German distributor focused on providing highly integrated networked audio and media systems.

Global Caché's flagship product, the GC-100 Network Adapter, is designed to IP-enable devices and appliances that otherwise could not be connected to a network, bringing Ethernet connectivity to infrared (IR) devices, serial (RS232) devices, and relay switches (contact closure) allowing them to be controlled using IP-based software. Global Caché also supplies IR learning devices, IR receivers, and sensors for use over networks. audio Network offers a best-of-breed line-up of networked audio and media products, including automation and control software, and hardware that has been pre-tested to assure optimization and compatibility.

“We view the previously untapped German market as a large opportunity for our products and are very pleased to have begun working with audio Network”, said Robin Ford, VP of business Development for Global Caché. “The fact that they represent many of our valued partners is a big plus for us, and they will be instrumental in our ability to grow our business in Europe going forward.”

“The Global Caché product line fills a need that our customer base has been asking for,” said Lars Schroeder, audio Network General Manager. “The combination of Global Caché products, Stardraw software, and our other top-of-the-line audio and media products allows us to deliver leading-edge solutions at an affordable price. We're pretty excited about that.”
