Global Caché and Visible Interactive Form Strategic Alliance

GC-100 Network Adapter and Visible Interactive Touch Screen Computer Provide Seamless Solution

San Jose, CA – June 9, 2004 – Global Caché, a leader in products that enable technology in homes and businesses, and Visible Interactive, a leading provider of all-in-one touch screens, announced today they have entered into a strategic alliance to ensure their respective products work seamlessly together.

Global Caché's award winning GC-100 Network Adapter is a hardware product designed to IP-enable common household devices and appliances, bringing Ethernet networking to IR devices, serial devices, and relay switches allowing them to be controlled using IP-based software. Global Caché also supplies IR learning devices, IR receivers, and power sensors for use over a network.

Visible Interactive provides all-in-one touch screen computers designed specifically for the home automation industry incorporating many exclusive features not found in competitive products.

“We're very pleased to be working with Visible Interactive,” said Global Caché's President Walt Keller. “Our customers are always on the lookout for ways to provide a high quality product to the marketplace. A powerful and cost-effective solution can be delivered using our GC-100 Network Adapter, a Visible Interactive all-in-one touch screen computer, and software from one of our many partners.”

Michael Neal, O.D, President and CEO of Visible Interactive is equally enthusiastic. “We feel that a combination of our touch screen computers, Global Cache's GC-100 Network Adapters and third party software will enable us to deliver high end automation capabilities at a fraction of the cost of our competitors' proprietary solutions. We are pleased to be working with Global Caché and look forward to what we can accomplish together.”
